We expected them to be fine, but did not anticipate such artistic perfection.

YOU have probably noticed a few pieces in the window, and will agree that every one is perfect in execution, and the subjects well chosen.

For pieces of such perfection, the prices are not high, ranging from about Ten Dollars up to Thirty.

We are also showing this week the Vienna Miniatures on Porcelain, mounted in pretty bronze frames, the whole being perfect in execution, and well worthy a space in your cabinet.

These pieces are exceedingly modest in price, costing only Five, Six and Seven Dollars each.

and tied across their ruffle of lace with pink satin ribbons. A wide waved collar was finished with a lace ruffle and across the front pink ribbons were tied.

Miss Nora Sturgeon gave a luncheon Wednesday at the residence of Mr. Henry Waterhouse on Nuuanu avenue, for Miss Mary Rice of Kauai, whose engagement to Mr. Walter Scott of San Francisco has just been announced. Those present, in addition to the guest of honor and the hostess, were Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mrs. Clarence Cooke, Mrs. Grace Waterhouse, Mrs. Charles Rice, Miss Scott, Miss Church, Miss Schaefer, Miss Dickey, Miss Kopke and Miss King.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Downing gave a heart party at their home last Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Christie Tackaberry and Mrs. Katherine L. Clark. The house was decorated with hearts galore, and tiny cupid were shooting their arrows in a most reckless fashion. A new

To the feminine mind, talks on clothes seldom fail to prove of interest. One of the recent brides was good enough to show some of her pretty things, but with the understanding that description of them should be without any mention of name. Among them is a handsome calling costume of bright red and black velvet. The drop skirt is circular, with the lower part outlined and trimmed with rows of braid, below which is a graduated circular flounce of red. Small panels are inserted on the hips, of the black velvet outlined with braid. The coat waist blouses, of course—everything blouses these days—a little in front and is trimmed with the black velvet to match the skirt, outlined with the braid. The sleeves are full at the bottom, with a ruffle effect at the wrist, with the black velvet again used with the outlining of braid. This sounds, perhaps, a bit warm, but the black denotes the blaze of the red, and there are winter days, often, even here on the Islands, when one is glad to don something heavier than lawn and dimities. Then, too, red is "the color" this year.

An evening dress at which permission was given to steal an admiring glance, was of ivory white satin, with insertions in graduated stripes of Italian flit lace medallions, with cloth of gold centers bordered with roses. A design of black velvet ribbon bow knots with insertion borders the hem. The waist, with fronts opening over a soft vest of white tulle, has the lace and brocade gold medallions bordering its fronts and the back. The tulle of the vest has crossing bows of the black velvet ribbon. The same design outlines the low neck. Long position tails of the flit lace at the back, match the shoulder bertha; while fancy black and gold buttons set with rhinestone complete the whole beautiful effect. While talking, the proud possessor of all these pretty things, had donned the most fetching of matinees in striped pink and white fancy silk, made with bolero effect, and having bordering of flit lace. The sleeves were slashed on the outer side.

The members of the Knoll company and a party of friends were the guests of Pearl Harbor folk last Sunday and Monday, and spent a most enjoyable two days upon the waters of the loch and in the cane fields. The party went down to Pearl City Sunday morning, and were the guests to luncheon of Secretary and Mrs. Cooper, enjoying, too, a ride about the lochs. After this they were taken across to Aiea, to the country place of Dr. McGrew, where there was a short time spent, and then the entire party drove to the residence of Manager Low of the Honolulu Plantation, where the night was passed. The entire population was visited before the return on Monday afternoon, and the guests spent a most pleasant time seeing the sights of the fields and mill.

the important matters of business coming up before the synod, on account of his trip to San Francisco, and further, on account of not receiving the draft of the charter until recently.

Rev. Mr. Tomkins also presented a resolution which called for more energy in working for the mission fund of the diocese. There had been a deplorable lack of assistance to this fund in the past two years, and he hoped that sermons would be preached and earnest effort put forth to retrieve the past.

The amendment to the statute presented by Rev. Canon Kitecat, which was published in Thursday's Advertiser, elicited discussion of the reasons for changing the Anglican canons to accord with the American. This dealt with the appointment of a standing committee by the bishop, and its personnel. Mr. Testa was opposed to everything in the amendment, as he feared the centralization of power in the hands of one man, the bishop, would be too great. Testa also opposed a similar resolution, presented by Rev. Canon Ault, saying: "If this is the mode of procedure in the synod, it is something new to me; I am a beginner in synodical matters, but from what I have seen in governmental and legislative matters, we should not be doing this," and Testa indulged in a harangue upon his idea of parliamentary procedure. The resolution, however, was duly passed.

At the close of the meeting, Rev. Canon Kitecat, in commenting on the inability of the church to present important matters bearing upon its ecclesiastical affairs to the communicants, said it was because of the lack of a church press. Had there been a church press the matters to be considered in synod could have been brought to the attention of the members much earlier and discussed. No mention was made by Canon Kitecat of "The Anglican Church Chronicle," conducted by the Second Congregation, nor of the Diocesan Magazine, edited by the bishop.

At the Orpheum.

The show given by Hogan last night was a finished performance. The acts were trimmed down and the objectionable features of the night before were eliminated. The Carters in dress suits were an improvement over the tramp act, while the Trustys captured the house. The show merits good business, and the crowd that will no doubt pack the house this afternoon at the matinee and this evening will be entertained by a good program of mirth and music.
